HUD residents learn about the CCI.

Participants at the UDW presentation.

San Diego County

- 5/6 - Fourteen low-income residents of 11 senior community Housing and Urban Development (HUD) programs took in presentations about the CCI. Participants were most interested in the notices, choice form and continuity of care protections. Resident learned how to prioritize their doctors by order of importance when selecting a plan and were encouraged to contact the health plans for more details. Following the presentation, residents also received personal assistance with their enrollment materials.
- 5/8 - About 300 hundred UDW members joined the UDW Quarterly Meeting to receive updates on policy and healthcare related issues to their IHSS recipients. They listened to a presentation on the CCI and learned how to access additional resources or other presentations.

Other Recent Events

San Diego County

On April 28, 29, and 30, UDW, the Homecare Providers Union, participated in several presentations about the CCI. UDW is a nonprofit union that supports care providers so they can offer better care to IHSS recipients. Many of these providers are family, friends and community members.

These presentations were conducted in English and Spanish, while other English-language presenters offered translation devices for providers who speak Spanish, Tagalog, and Vietnamese. Participants learned about the enrollment process, notices, and about the resources available to them for asking further questions. Others were given instructions about how to obtain resources in other languages. All received papers that listed HICAP's and HCO's phone numbers.

Alameda County

- 5/6 - Residents of Park Boulevard Manor in Oakland participated in a CCI overview presentation.

Los Angeles County
